EDUCATOR'S VIEWS

LITTLE TO REGRET IN EXCLUSION OF THE BIBLE FROM SCHOOLS

Editor News: Among other things, Catholics are accused of having driven the Bible from the public schools of our country, to the great injury of religious education. "Guardians of Liberty," "Knights of Luther," Billy Parkers and others "defending America against the encroachment of Rome," as they claim, especially have dwelt upon this point. That agnostics and Jews have opposed bible reading in public schools is overlooked by these enemies of the Catholic church, as is the part that good reasons have been advanced by Protestants, why the Holy Book should not be used in the schools "as a religious book."

Thus Arthur Jackson Hall, in a dissertation recently published by the University of Chicago Press, expresses the following views on this question:

"There seems no escape from the conviction that the great majority of those who advocate the use of the Bible in the schools have in mind its religious value. They are contending for the Bible in the schools either as a symbol of religion, or as a manual of religious instruction, or as a book of religious worship. In this way they hope to create the spirit of reverence and impart the knowledge of religion. All this is supposed to be accomplished by the reading of ten or twenty verses a day, without note or comment. The purpose indeed is praiseworthy, but the method is inadequate. From the point of view of a thorough religious education, it is impossible to believe that such a use of the Bible can be attended with any great value. On the other hand it is easy to see how it may be nothing more than a worthless form, leaving not a trace of good upon the minds and hearts of the pupils. Religious education, which has in view the end to be accomplished, and not the means, cannot possibly look with favor on any such procedure. And yet many of the advocates of the Bible in the schools seem to feel that their whole work is accomplished when once the sacred volume is introduced into these institutions. The suspicion is aroused that, perhaps unconsciously to themselves, they are looking upon the Bible as a kind of fetish, a book of magic power, that they expect its mere presence in the school to work the miracle of transformation. But surely they are leaning upon a broken reed. There is no justification for what they expect. The Bible is invaluable for religious education, but not such a use of it as they recommend. Religious education raises voice of protest. It refuses to be satisfied with such a makeshift. It therefore has little to regret in the exclusion of the Bible from the schools. It believes that the school has suffered no loss and the Bible no injury nor insult."

In the face of recent attempts to legislate in favor of reintroducing the reading of the Bible into the public schools of certain states, this statement from a Protestant source is of interest and value.

BUSINESS GOOD AT MONTROSE LUMBER YARD

The Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber company of this city, who recently started a new lumber yard at Montrose, say that they are more than pleased with the initial business at their new branch, and that there seems to be considerable building in the vicinity of Montrose, La Canada, La Crescenta and Sunland. In addition to the great increase of business, the new branch will bring to Bentley-Schoeneman the establishment of two yards in close proximity makes it possible to secure the advantage of greater buying power—a greater volume of business—thus making it easier to give still lower estimates on building bills than has been possible in the past. Mr. Bentley, of the Bentley-Schoeneman company, told a representative of the Evening News this morning that without doubt the list of local building permits would greatly increase in the next month or so, due to the fact that money is becoming fairly easy and the average residence can be erected at the present time at a saving of from 15 to 20 per cent over what it could have been built two years ago. Lumber is about $4.00 per 1000 feet cheaper, labor is cheaper and all building materials can be purchased for less. Many shrewd investors are preparing to take advantage of the situation—and it is practically certain building activities will quickly improve.

VACATION IN GLENDALE

CITY AND VICINITY OFFER VERY UNIQUE ATTRACTIONS EVEN TO THE RESIDENTS

Now that the season is approaching when the jaded merchant and man of business turns longing eyes to the seashore and contemplates a change of scene, no matter how brief a time, it may be well to consider the attractions that Glendale offers, even to its own residents, as a summer resort. It would be difficult to find any part of the country that presents so many natural beauties to those in search of a complete rest for the mind and such a variety of pursuits in the way of temporary change of occupation.

Standing within the circle of the foothills, this city is one of the most picturesque on the coast line. "As round about Jerusalem the mountains stand always," sang the Psalmist, whose poet's eye was alert to perceive the natural charm of the hills, and whose ear was attuned to catch the many voices of nature in a mountainous country. Not even Jerusalem has a more unique natural setting than has Glendale.

Back in the hill country are numerous canyons where animal life abounds and the nature lover, even though he or she may not pretend to the title "naturalist," can indulge in that hobby to the full. With a camera in hand the city man, worn out by a long winter, spring and hot summer in a confining office, can get more real pleasure from the timid deer, the scampering rabbit and the retiring birds than with a destructive shotgun or rifle. The trophies of that bloodless chase will also serve to pass away many a tedious winter hour and lay up a store of pleasant memories unaccompanied by slaughter.

Where in all Southern California can one find a region more rich in botanical treasures than that around Glendale? Even within the confines of the city itself a thousand varieties of interesting plants and shrubs are to be found. It might be suggested as a charming vacation amusement that those in search of an unique method of spending a vacation in this charming home spot, get hold of some descendant of the old Spanish time or of some "native" and learn the interesting properties of the medicinal and useful plants of this place. There are hundreds of them from the soap tree to the many edible roots of the neighborhood. An interesting study might be made of the cryptogams of the region round about Glendale. Just at present, after the copious rains of the past weeks, crop after crop of mushrooms have sprung up and among them other cryptogams that are poisonous. It is by no means easy to distinguish the difference between the innocent and the deadly variety and every year scores of people die from "mushroom" poisoning. Here is an attractive study at your doors; one, too, which will amply repay you.

There are streams in the hills that afford fishing that offers not only the pleasure of the pursuit, but also health in its course. All this is within easy reach of the vacation spender from day to day close to home. Too often men seek far off what would be theirs and come to them if they would only wait for it at home. Nearer and nearer every day to home are the joy and peace that glimmer out of every living thing.

Turn on the other hand to what the vacation spender too often gets at a seaside resort. To begin with, such places are always overcrowded. No man or woman, or school girl or teacher, or school boy either, though an exception might be made in the case of boys and girls, after a long session of study, can expect to get much benefit in the way of rest among the great crowd of eager pleasure seekers at the usual seaside resort. The whirl and noise and excitement there are the very opposite of what one should have to rest the mind and recuperate the worn-out tissues of the body. A brief season at the overcrowded seashore resort often leaves the vacationist more tired than when the season began.

There is nothing more beneficial for the vacation spender than close touch with Nature. In quiet communion with natural things the soul regains its tone and the body recovers its spring and vitality. Where can one get those things better than in Glendale?

Here we have a sanely ruled and sanely developed city with a sane citizenship. It is difficult for the quiet home-loving inhabitants of our city to get any place so comfortable. Their own homes have attractions far superior to those of the seaside rooming house, hotel, apartment house or any other of the temporary make-shifts for home that are to be

GLENDALE COMMANDERY NO. 53 CONSTITUTED IN MASONIC TEMPLE

LAST NIGHT MARKED AN EPOCH IN THE HISTORY OF MASONRY IN THIS CITY, WHEN GLENDALE COMMANDERY WAS INSTITUTED IN THE PRESENCE OF A LARGE NUMBER OF VISITING MASONS. PROMINENT STATE OFFICERS HELP PUT ON WORK

Edward Kenneth Daniels
Eminent Commander

Mattison Boyd Jones
Generalissimo

Clement L. V. Moore
Captain-General

What may be counted a landmark in the history of Masonry in Glendale took place Friday night in Masonic temple here, when Glendale Commandery No. 53, Knights Templar, was constituted at the hands of a brilliant band of fraters from the different neighboring commanderies. This interesting event drew a very large number of the brethren together.

Right Eminent Sir Perry W. Weidener, grand commander of Southern California, presided as constituting officer. He was assisted by the following staff: Eminent Sir Benjamin F. Bledsoe, deputy grand commander; Eminent Sir E. F. Mulligan, grand generalissimo of Pasadena Commandery No. 31; Eminent Sir Robert Wankowski, grand captain-general Los Angeles Commandery No. 9; Eminent Sir Arthur Wright, grand prelate Golden West Commandery

No. 43; Eminent Sir A. J. Copp, Jr., grand senior warden Los Angeles Commandery No. 9; Eminent Sir A. S. Abbott, grand junior warden Alhambra Commandery No. 48; Eminent Sir Freeman G. Tweed, grand recorder Los Angeles Commandery No. 9; Eminent Sir W. H. Harrison, grand standard bearer Los Angeles Commandery No. 9; Eminent Sir George F. Stone, grand sword bearer Alhambra Commandery No. 48; Eminent Sir Frank L. Miller, grand warden Los Angeles Commandery No. 9.

The following officers were duly installed: Eminent Sir Edward Kenneth Daniels, commander; Sir Mattison Boyd Jones, generalissimo; Sir Clement L. V. Moore, captain-general; Sir Charles Luther Peckham, senior warden; Sir David George Crofton, Jr., junior warden; Sir C. Irving Mills, D. D., prelate; Sir David Campbell, treasurer; Eminent Sir Charles Christian Rittenhouse, recorder; Sir Frank H. Vesper, standard bearer; Sir George E. F. Duffett, sword bearer; Sir Percy James Prialux, warden; Sir Harry Eugene Betz, third guard; Sir William Gibbs Black, second guard; Sir Ross Henry Rook, first guard; Sir Charles Henry Ravenscroft, sentinel.

After the ceremony of constitution was finished, Commander Daniels presented the Commandery with a handsome large Bible for use in the ceremonial. Sir Mattison Boyd Jones made the presentation speech. The speech of acceptance was given by Sir Rev. C. Irving Mills, D. D., prelate, on behalf of the Commandery.

An interesting succession of speeches was then heard from members of the different visiting Commanderies. Refreshments were served and a pleasant feast of reason and flow of soul characterized the remainder of the evening.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT

One of the most largely attended and most successful affairs ever given at the Congregational church took place last evening when the Pacific Mutual Glee club gave a concert under the auspices of the Brotherhood of the church. There was an exceptionally good attendance and the audience was very appreciative of the music, being liberal with their applause and praise of the ability of the performers. This is a fine club both as to personnel and musical ability, and they were very generous in responding to encores last night, every number on the program calling for a return number. The Brotherhood feel well satisfied with the result of the concert as they cleared more than $50, and feel that they gave a large number of people a real treat. The church had been very prettily decorated in honor of the coming of these young men.

DECISION IN AUTO SUIT

The suit of the Overland Auto & Truck company against W. Hyatt, for $225.50 for damages to an auto, which was tried by Judge Whomes, last Tuesday, May 4, was decided on Thursday. The court rendered judgment in favor of the Overland company for the sum of $53.60, with costs amounting to $11.25.

The accident took place July 19, 1914, near intersection of Broadway and Isabel. The judge's decision was acquiesced in by both parties.

obtained at the beaches—for a consideration.

The damp rooms, the chilling breath of the nightly sea fog, the ill-cooked and dear food, the constant temptations to spend and the thousand devices that are in fashion at the seaside resorts to separate the unwary visitor from his money, are but poor substitutes for the well ordered home, the peace of domestic surroundings and the quiet society of a choice circle of reliable friends.

Should one desire the change to the seaside, it is easy enough to go to any of the beaches in the early morning and to return in the early evening. One or two such visits will usually be sufficient for those who are not enamored of the dizzy round of stale "attractions" and frenzied dancing halls, which are so much in vogue at the beaches. Glendale is good enough for those who understand its lovely and lovable moods and a vacation residence here will repay a thousandfold anyone who may decide on it.

CITY BUILDING PERMITS

Notwithstanding the serious financial depression that has afflicted the country during the past year, building in Glendale appears to keep up to the record. The month of May shows even at this early date a tendency on the part of citizens to start on new houses, additions and garages. It may be expected that the balance of the year will show equally gratifying progress. There is always a certain minimum of building in this city every year and the fact that it maintains its average is satisfactory evidence that prosperity has not deserted the inhabitants of this place.

D. H. Shaw of 119 Fifth street is erecting a handsome, 8-room Swiss chalet on one of the vacant lots he owns in that quarter. The chalet will have a concrete basement. There will also be a garage at the rear. The contractor is F. W. Troupe, 2618 W. Eighth street, Los Angeles. Mr. Shaw is a prominent business man in one of the cities of the East, but now retired, has been a visitor to Glendale at different periods and has acquired some property here. He has become so charmed with Glendale and its environments that he has now determined to make it his permanent residence.

Mr. John Horser is to erect a dwelling house, at a cost of $1500, at 328 Second street.

Frank Richardson, of 129 Kenwood street, is building a garage. The contractor is W. Vanosdale.

Mr. J. S. Thompson, 1545 West Broadway, is building a garage at an expense of $50.

N. M. Everett, of 445 Central avenue, is building an addition to his residence at a cost of $300.

E. H. Kerker, 114 Second street, is building a garage which will cost $50.

E. D. Yard, 201 North Maryland, has received a permit for a dwelling house which will cost $2000.

POMONA CHIEF KILLED

Chief of Police Henry P. Tracy of Pomona was accidentally killed on Monday evening when leaving a motorcycle shop with Officer Garrison on a motorcycle. They passed into the street from behind an automobile standing at the curb. They ran directly in the path of a heavy truck loaded with oranges. Before the driver could stop the truck struck the men, hurling them some distance. Chief Tracy suffered a broken leg and internal injuries, which caused his death an hour later. Officer Garrison suffered a broken arm and a sprained ankle.

ST. MARGARET'S BALL

One of the most delightful social affairs of the season was the spring dance given last evening at Masonic Temple by the members of St. Margaret's Guild of St. Mark's church. This might well have been called a "Rose Ball" for there were thousands of these beautiful blooms used in the rooms given over to the affair. Miss Harriett Wells, president of the guild is deserving of congratulation for the success of the dance as the entire affair was under her supervision.

The stage in the ball room was a bank of roses and greenery and tall vases of the same blossoms mingled with fern graced the windows on each side of the room. The punch bowl occupied a table in the hall which was banked with asparagus plumosus studded with Cecile Brunner roses while in the reception room where the card tables were placed, there was a variety of beautiful roses used.

Dr. Flint was at the head of the floor committee and assisted the St. Margaret girls in introducing the guests.

At the appointed hour, to the strains of the latest dance music by the Merrill orchestra, the grand march led by Dr. and Mrs. James L. Flint, Miss Francella Billington and Mr. Lemar Johnstone began and from that time until, well, several hours later, there was a constant merry tripping of the light fantastic with intervals only long enough to visit the refreshing punch bowl. Those who wished, enjoyed cards in the reception room, Mrs. C. F. Parker winning the prize for highest score. As usual the dance programs were hand decorated with the society flower, the marguerite, and were handsome conceits.

This is acknowledged to be the prettiest party the St. Margaret girls have ever given. The many beautiful gowns mingled with the myriads of roses under the softly shaded lights made a picture to be long remembered and the splendid music was an added incentive to keep dancing.

EVENING NEWS SERVICE

It is the wish of the manager of the Evening News that the carrier boys give good service to the patrons. Carrier boys sometimes may be thoughtless and neglect to deliver the paper, or maybe they will not deliver it in a convenient place for the subscriber. Report all shortcomings on the part of the carrier boys to the News office.

HELPFUL PUBLICITY

ALL SCHOOL OFFICIALS SHOULD HAVE AID AND ENCOURAGEMENT OF THE PATRONS

It is the intention of the Glendale Evening News to give impartial publicity to all matters in which the schools and the city are concerned. The schools are supported by the people and it is right that the people should know what is being done with the public's money.

However, in giving these reports, it is not the intention of the editor to refer to them in a criticising manner. A board of school trustees work without compensation and they are only too likely to get unjust treatment from the hands of those who should give them helpful advice in a kindly manner.

Sometimes the publishing of an item about the expenditure of money without an explanation being given in connection would make it appear to the average reader that the expenditure is unnecessary. Therefore, before passing opinion on any item of expenditure it is a good plan to inquire as to the whys and wherefores of the expenditure.

ENTERTAIN TEACHERS

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Campbell presided at a very pretty dinner party Thursday evening at their charming foothill home, Ard-Evin, when their children, Daniel, Jr., Arthur, Jr. and Miss Kathleen entertained their teachers. The handsomely appointed table was centered with a bowl of pretty pink roses and the place cards were in the form of boys and girls. Covers were laid for Miss Noble, Miss Matthews, Miss Ruby Dale, Mrs. Ryan and Mr. Julius Kranz.

Following the delicious full course dinner, music and social intercourse were enjoyed during the evening.

SHAKESPEARE STUDENTS ARE TO-FROLIC

The annual picnic luncheon of the Shakespeare section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, which was postponed from last Monday on account of rain, will be held next Monday at Newhall canyon. The members will meet at the residence of Mrs. W. E. Evans, at 10:30 Monday morning and will be conveyed to the place of the picnic in machines. The lesson in the afternoon will be the third act of "Much Ado About Nothing."

RADIUM USED TO PROMOTE PLANT GROWTH

Some of the remarkable properties of radium are being demonstrated by an exhibitor in the liberal arts building at the Panama-Pacific international exposition at San Francisco in connection with a new invention that makes possible the radiofying of water for medicinal purposes.

Demonstrating the power of this mineral promoting metabolism, a number of young plants, some existing with and some without the aid of radium, are shown. Those in the radio-active soils are seen to be growing much more rapidly than those in common soil, and to have a more healthy appearance.

This inventor has found a process of impregnating terra cotta bricks with radium-bearing minerals, and these small bricks placed in water are said to give it remarkable curative properties. The porous bricks last almost indefinitely, losing only half their potency, it is estimated, in 1800 years. Since the discovery of this mineral it has been found that many celebrated waters, as Carlsbad and Baden Baden, owe their health-giving properties to radium. The inventor claims that his process produces in ordinary waters the qualities of these famous springs.

The radium ore used in the manufacture of radioactive terra cotta is known as carnotite, a formation found mainly in Colorado and Utah, and now producing three-fourths of the world's radium. The European mineral, known as pitchblende, from which the famous European springs are impregnated, is also displayed.

FIRE HOUSE ADORNMENT

Summer has fallen on the police headquarters and firehouse unmistakably. The center balcony of the building is radiant with floral beauty. Some time ago Chief Herald seeing the bare and unattractive appearance of the center balcony, determined to do what he could to remedy that defect. Along with the other occupants of the fire house, the chief constructed a flower box, sent to Verdugo canyon for special oak mould and planted flowers which are now blossoming in full beauty. Even the stern majesty of the law looks the better for its floral adornment.

SINKING OF LUSITANIA BY GERMANS MAY CONCERN UNITED STATES

Nietzsche, the great German war authority, advocates thoroughness in dealing with an enemy. War, according to this modern apostle of thoroughness, cannot be conducted with kid gloves. If it is right to kill, it is right to kill on the largest scale possible. In order to strike terror into the heart of the enemy, it may be necessary to exterminate a whole cityful. Women and children and noncombatants of all kinds have no rights compared with the rights of belligerents, and the weak must go to the wall and even to the grave when their weakness is brought into opposition to the grim necessities of the conqueror.

On this theory destruction of the art treasures of the Belgian cities may be amply justified, and the bombardment of the cathedral of Rheims, with its marvelous architecture and graven work and its world-touching historical associations, was a matter of justifiable necessity.

It need not be wondered at then that the Germans have determined to adopt and practice every art that can contribute to the possibility of ultimate German triumph. Not long ago they proclaimed a submarine blockade of the British coasts. This was done regardless of the fact that a submarine blockade is really an impossibility in the ordinary acceptance of the term. It is not possible for a submarine to take off and save the passengers of a large vessel after the boats of the vessel had been destroyed. A submarine subjects itself to the possibility of being sunk the moment it begins operations that compel it to remain stationary on the surface of the water. Ignoring the new situation caused by the employment of submarines, aeroplanes and Zeppelins, the kaiser and his advisers recently gave notice that travelers intending to embark on voyage across the Atlantic should bear in mind that war exists between Germany and her allies and Great Britain and her allies. They politely reminded Americans that the zone of war includes the waters adjacent to the British Isles and that in accordance with formal notice given by the imperial government vessels flying the flag of Great Britain or any of her allies are liable to destruction in those waters, and that travelers sailing in the war zone on ships of Great Britain or her allies would do so at their own risk.

That the German government meant to carry out the policy of destruction here indicated, no one who understands the German character could have doubted. Germans are thorough in everything they do, and no one could by any possibility accuse them of either cowardice or hesitation in their policies. They gave unmistakable evidence of their sincerity by destroying two American vessels last week, and have emphasized their determination to carry out their theories of war to the limit by sinking the Cunard liner, Lusitania, without the slightest regard to the fact that there were 189 American passengers on board.

If anyone thinks for a moment that Germany is anxious to be considerate of American feelings, that individual may disabuse his or her mind at once of such a conception. Germany has never had much regard for the United States and individual Germans of official rank haven't hesitated to express it as their opinion that when Germany should have disposed of Great Britain and reduced that country to the status of a vassal, the next blow would be struck at the United States, and "Who," said they, "could doubt the result?"

It is the feeling of Germans that Germany is destined to rule the world; and rightly so, they maintain, because everything that is German is best, and conversely, everything that is best in the world, in some way or other may be considered German; anyway, thought to be German.

One cannot help admiring the thoroughness of that creed. One cannot help admitting that if wars are to be waged, then the best way to wage them is to be ruthless. The best way to prevent war, according to the German idea, is to handle so cruelly and ruthlessly such enemies as dare to lift up their heads against the Fatherland that they will never again dare to move even an eyelid against Germany. Burn, kill, mutilate if necessary; but in any case, so bear yourselves against the enemy of the Fatherland that never again will he venture to lift up so much as a finger against us. That is a creed of fiendish perfection. It is the ultimate of logical warfare and the only proper way to wage war. To talk of a humane war is absolute folly and the world may now look for retaliation on the part of the allies. Germany is using deadly gases as the very last thing in a neat and scientific method of finishing off its enemies and the allies are likely to respond in kind.

When General Sherman uttered his famous definition of war he spoke out of fullness of knowledge. Sherman's march through Georgia was a finished example of the perfection of warfare. His army at the beginning of its march was followed by thousands of infatuated colored people—men, women and children. The poor "niggers" received the army of the North with open arms and followed its footsteps, showering blessings on the men. "How the darkies shouted when they heard the joyful sound!" says the war song, "Marching Through Georgia." In a brief time came the stern command to throw off those incumbering followers and Sherman's men drove the poor darkies away, leaving them to find their own sustenance as best they could. As a matter of fact, many of them died, perishing of hunger and exposure.

That was the necessity of war. The northern army pursued its way, devastating as it went—cotton mills, standing crops, everything went up in one mighty holocaust. Georgia was a blackened desert from Atlanta to the sea. That as well as everything else that General Grant's policy dictated helped to finish the war in short order. With provisions cut off by the sea blockade, and the land a howling wilderness of devastated fields, the South was conquered.

So the longer this cruel war goes on in Europe, the world may expect to hear of worse things being perpetrated than the sinking of a trans-Atlantic liner with 189 Americans on board. Germany throws down the gauntlet of defiance to the world. The kaiser well knows the weakness of the United States, both on sea and land, and looks for a day of reckoning. As his officers during the past ten years drank significantly the toast, "To the Day," meaning the day when the embattled hosts of the Fatherland should march forth to conquer the world, so they now significantly gaze across the Atlantic and think of another "day."

What the Almighty thinks of all this is another question. What we as Christians should think of it Christ taught us when he spake the memorable Sermon on the Mount: "I say unto you, love your enemies; bless them that curse you; do good to them that hate you; and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you." The world, professedly Christian, is yet a long way off from that ideal.

To the citizens of the United States, with their ideals of peace, this unmistakable example of what may be expected throughout this war comes with somewhat of a shock. It may be doubted if the nation at large is prepared to indorse or acquiesce in the kaiser's war of extermination. It needs only the sinking of some genuine American vessel, with the loss of many American lives, to set the nation in a blaze, with far-reaching consequences, and it is not possible at this moment to say what effect the sinking of the Lusitania may have on this country.

Nevertheless, the saner part of our citizenship will deplore the possible consequences of such a concrete violation of the rules of "civilized" warfare, as hitherto agreed on by the nations. This nation is the Almighty's object lesson to the rest of the world. Here are the gathered peoples of every country on the earth. Here Germans marry and intermarry with French; Italians with Irish; Hungarians, Bohemians and Slavs of every degree with each other. All find it possible to live in harmony, peace and fellowship. All are concerned with the upgrowth of a true American citizenship and find that such an ideal is possible and that the men and women of every nation are human, lovable and of one blood as God made them.

While this is the case in the United States, the old European world, staggering along under the burden of worn-out traditions and the oppression of ruling castes, is hounded on, country against country, to slaughter, burn and destroy as if there were no God in the universe and no day of reckoning.

As American citizens, we must hold to our ideals and strive to keep aloof from this weltering chaos of murder, so that when the time comes, with clean hands we may be able to take up the blessed role of peacemaker and help to inaugurate a new era wherein war shall be made impossible at the hands of a new world citizenship.

so bad.

SPANISH SURNAMES

In addition to three or four Christian names, the Spanish child bears the combined family names of his father and mother. When the surnames are doubled or connected by the y, meaning "and," the first is the more important one and the only one that may be taken alone, for it is in the father's name, while the last is in the name of the mother. In Spain they know no "senior" and "junior."
Father and son may bear the same Christian name, but each takes his own mother's name as a distinction,
the father being, for instance, Pedro
Diaz y Castillo and the son Pedro Diaz y Blanco.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Mothers' Day will be appropriately observed at this church tomorrow.
The pastor will be assisted in the service by two of the faithful officers of the church and this will doubtless be an innovation which will add much to the interest in the worship. Ten minute addresses by C. P. Bowles and L. E. Berkey, in admiration of mother and motherhood, will be given followed by Mr. Francis on the same general theme. If there is any person or any subject which can get close to us and touch us in our tenderest spot it is mother. Then let us all honor her tomorrow by attending service and listening to enconiums of praise of her many virtues. Let everyone wear a white carnation. If you can get none conveniently, it will be furnished you at the church door.

"Heavenly recognition" will be the way and Cedar street, Sunday even-corn Repudiated." The great interest which now centers in the coming

"Dry" campaign will be presented, and all who hear this address may be sure that the subject will be handled in a most interesting and masterful manner. Remember the time and place. Presbyterian church, Sunday evening at 7:30.

According to the papers, men about to be hanged usually eat a "heartly breakfast." I should choke.
Besides, it is wasteful.

THE NON-PARTISAN BILL

With the reactionary minority fighting with desperation to prevent the non-partisan issue being submitted to the people this year, the senate, by a vote of thirty-two to eight, passed a bill introduced by Senator Breed directing the governor to call a special election October 26.

At this special election the people will have an opportunity to discard the present unjust and inequitable taxation system and pave the way for a method that will greatly lessen the tax burden now borne by the people.

There also will be submitted to the people at this special election all laws enacted by this legislature which may be held up under the referendum. This probably will include the non-partisan act, which the reactionaries have threatened to hold up by referendum.

What the reactionaries hoped to accomplish was to delay non-partisanship until November, 1917. Even if the people overwhelmingly approved non-partisanship then it would be two years more—or November, 1919—before non-partisanship would come into practical operation.

Public sentiment everywhere has expressed itself enthusiastically for non-partisanship in state affairs, and the people are in no mood to allow the reactionaries to suspend by abuse of the referendum the operation of the non-partisan law for three years.

Two years ago several notable laws were prevented from going immediately into effect by use of the referendum. Crooked stock-selling concerns tied up the blue sky law for two years; the brothel keepers delayed the redlight abatement act for the same period and the water power grabbers held off the water commission act. The reactionaries will not be permitted to duplicate the trick with the non-partisan laws.

Now that steps have been taken to submit the issue at once to the voters the zeal of the opponents of nonpartisanship has been greatly abated. They realize that nonpartisanship will be overwhelmingly endorsed by the people. They have suddenly awakened to the fact that when the people do note approval under the referendum nonpartisanship can never be eliminated by legislative act and can be repealed only by vote of the people.

Senator Breed's bill went through its three readings under a suspension of the constitution. Only four votes were cast against the introduction of the bill. On final roll call the vote stood 32 to 8.

Assemblyman Gelder's bill to prevent vaccination being made a condition precedent to attendance in the public schools came up for passage in senate late this afternoon and was defeated.

The senate voted for McDonald's bill requiring employers to provide without charge pure drinking water to their employees during working hours.—Los Angeles Tribune.

BE KIND TO ANIMALS

May 17 to 22, 1915

It is suggested that observance of "Be Kind to Animal Week" shall include special services in schools of every description, public addresses, and the preparation of essays and newspaper articles by school children, and others, devoted to the subject of kindness to animals and the recital of incidents showing their intelligence and loyal service.

It is needless to say that the subject of our duty to wild animals and their proper protection should also be given special attention. In one state, at least, it is proposed to have automobiles go through the state for the purpose of distributing humane literature and encouraging the formation of new local anti-cruelty societies, as well as to stimulate the activity of those already in existence. The ramifications of this subject are so extensive that it is not possible to deal with all its features in a brief statement.

Question: Why should one Sunday in the year be devoted to the special consideration of mercy and kindness in the treatment of God's helpless creatures—suffering little children and abused animals?

Answer: Because they are the victims of broadcast cruelty and ill treatment; because they are dumb and defenseless; because religious people need to be taught their duty to them and have their consciences quickened and educated; because the churches should not lag behind in the worldwide and successful campaign which is being waged to introduce practical humanity in human conduct.

The special leaflet for clergymen giving information suitable for sermons will be sent on receipt of a request in a personal letter or post card from each clergyman.

HOW THE WAR HIT HIM

"Madam," said the tattered and torn suppliant to the benevolent lady who answered his timid rap at the door, "have you any old clothes you can spare for an unfortunate victim of the European war?"

"I think I have, my poor man; but how does this happen? You cannot have been in this war, surely?"

"No, madam," humbly replied the sufferer; "but my wife has sent all my clothes to the Belgians."—Harrisburg Star-Independent.

The censors are killing a lot of good fiction in the present war.

HOW PROHIBITION WORKS IN RUSSIA

A new light on the temperance situation in Russia is supplied in a letter from the American consulate general in Moscow, Russia, dated February 2, 1915, just received by Mr. A. H. Woodson of the National Model License league, Louisville, Ky. The letter says:

"In response to your inquiry of January 7, requesting exact information in regard to the Russian ukase prohibiting the use of liquors other than vodka in Russia, I beg to state that in the strict sense of the word the Crown has not proclaimed such an edict. At the beginning of the war, the government expressed a desirability for the discontinuance of the sale of all intoxicants throughout the empire, but the issuance of regulations for the sale of drinks were left to the local institutions of self-government.

"The city of Moscow was the first to prohibit the sale of intoxicating drinks, including light wines and beer, but only the vodka shops were closed for the first three months of the war, it being possible to purchase either at the beer saloons or wine shops all grade of beer and wine. Vodka was also sold at that time in the higher class restaurants in Moscow, and in fact throughout Russia in the same places. Later, however, all wine stores and beer saloons were closed and the sale of any kinds of intoxicants absolutely forbidden for the time being; no limit being set for the opening of these institutions. Petrograd followed Moscow's example, and so did most of the other cities, boroughs and villages, so that it may be assumed that the sale of intoxicants is forbidden in perhaps 90 per cent of all cities and towns in the empire.

"In the city of Moscow these regulations are outwardly being strictly enforced; a heavy fine being exacted from all persons infringing the rules. Wine may only be obtained on a prescription signed by a doctor, the exact amount being named, and the prescription good for only one time, but this office is informed that in all restaurants drinks may be obtained. It is stated, furthermore, that private houses have sufficient supplies to last during the war.

"At the present moment there is a movement in favor of the authorization to sell light wines and beer; this question will be placed before the legislative institutions upon which will depend the passing of a law regulating the sale of liquors.

"Practically all the breweries in Russia are temporarily closed, but according to a statement of the manager of one of the largest in Moscow they expect to open in the spring, as they anticipate a favorable ruling on the part of the government authorities with regard to the sale of beer. The wine merchants are equally hopeful, but no one is in a position to state accurately what the disposition of the government will be as to the continuance of the general sale throughout the country of vodka. There is a pretty decided opinion on the part of the thinking classes that the bottle houses in the villages and rural districts should be cut down, at least, and perhaps eliminated, and that the number in the larger cities should be fewer. This question is problematical and no decision will be reached until the cessation of hostilities.

"The government's loss on account of the closing of the vodka shops is more than $1,000,000 per day."—Christian Herald.

Most of us can plainly hear the echo of the knock of opportunity after it is too late.

While the assassination of Huerta is said to be feared, no alarm is felt about it in this office.

JUSTICE FOR WOMEN

Much has been printed by the press of California recently in condemnation of the legislature for its failure to pass the bills which have been introduced having for their object the granting of full legal rights and privileges to women.

The treatment accorded some of the bills favored by the women at the present session of the legislature has aroused feelings of resentment among the women supporters of the measures and it is more than likely that the result will be that the women voters will take a more active interest in elections hereafter.

A prominent woman who has taken a deep interest in the so-called women's bills, said the other day: "We feel that we have not been fairly treated. We have asked simply for fair play and the removal of the disadvantages under which women have labored in various matters. We asked that in the treatment of community under the laws, the wife be given equal privileges with the husband. But we found that the lawyers tangled up the proposition with so many objections that we could get nothing.

The women's jury bill was regarded as more important and attention was devoted to that. Now that has been beaten. We feel that our only remedy is to build a stronger organization and make our fight at the polls. We are aroused to the necessity of having women members in the legislature."

Some of the arguments made against the proposal to give the women rights on juries seem childish. One senator came to the senate armed with books from which he proposed to show the legislators the kind of evidence women would be compelled to hear if they were on juries.

Why did the senator think it necessary to prove what everyone with an ounce of brains and even the vaguest notion of court matters knows only too well?

The lawmakers apparently forget that one woman, often alone in a court-room crowded with sensation-seeking men, mainly of the low type, is compelled to hear the things that are declared to be too horrible for women on a jury.

In a case recently tried a lawyer made as filthy as he could the testimony a young girl was compelled to give, not because it was legally necessary, but because by so doing he thought to break down the young witness and aid his client.

Good women voluntarily remained in court to lend their moral support to the witness. It was because of the very things the law-makers are urging as objections that the women need jury rights.

This is not a question of propriety. The only question is whether women are to be accorded equal treatment with men.

The women have the ballot. We have taken the first step toward according them full political equality. They are entitled to all other rights and privileges of full citizenship and equal privileges under the laws.

Timid law-makers might just as well recognize that the women have the power to get what they want and sooner or later they will make their power felt.

California women are most in need right now of fair play under the law.—Monrovia News.

PLACING THE BLAME

THE SNAKE CAME BACK—WANTS HIS OLD JOB

Two years ago, when Bothwell Browne was at Pantages theater with his vaudeville act, "The Serpent of the Nile," he lost the pride of his harem, the snake that bites Cleopatra three times a day and four times on Sundays. Zeus, the serpent afore-said, escaped from his wicker basket and was never recovered.

And after awhile it was forgotten. But last Thursday night when Musical Director Wagner entered the orchestra pit at Pantages he discovered a snake coiled up in his chair.

The snake was asleep.

Wagner is a scientist in the intervals of being a musician.

His hobby is snakes.

Definitely seizing the reptile behind the ears with his muscular thumb and forefinger, Wagner conveyed his snakeship to a place of safety, and on looking him over was surprised to discover it to be the identical snake that escaped from Bothwell Browne two years ago.

Wagner is sure of this because the snake is of a rare variety, not found here. It is a green and venomous looking reptile that comes from South America, but is perfectly harmless.

There is nothing very notable about the recovery of a lost snake were it not for the fact that Bothwell Browne in "The Serpent of the Nile" is now at the Pantages. Wagner declares that the snake knew it and wanted his old job with Cleopatra.
